Answer the following questions and submit after your presentation.

Your Name: Brian Cheung Team: Product

1) How much time was spent meeting as a group outside of class for this presentation?

Biweekly for an hour 5-6 hours total

2) How much time did you personally spend on putting this entire presentation together (group meetings & alone)?

An hour bi weekly

Alone 1-2 hours bi weekly

3) Did your group practice the presentation in rehearsal (not summarizing what you intend to say, but saying it like you plan to actually present it)? If not, what did you do?

Yes, we practice a head of time and we divide our slides evenly.

4) Did your group discuss everyone's group role tendencies/ways of communicating? Did you discuss an action plan of what you would do if a conflict occurred (if yes, what was your specific plan)?

Yes, we had great communication and if anyone had a problem they would ask for help.

5) Did everyone attend outside meetings? If not, who missed meetings?

Yes, we all attended outside meetings.

6) Did someone dominate or take-over the presentation to the exclusion and detriment of others? If yes, who, how so exactly, why do you think that happened, and what did you do?

No, we all helped creating the slides equally.

7) Did someone lack critical contributions to this presentation (you felt they were invisible and did not add anything specific to the project)? If yes, who, how so exactly, why do you think that happened, and what did you do?

No.

8) What were your specific responsibilities in putting this presentation together?

I was responsible for introducing Bulldog Buckets and what communication methods we used for when we put the presentation together.

9) If your presentation earned an A from the professor's point of view, who do you think in your group should also receive this A grade? If you don't think they should get that A, what grade do you think they earned? Use a standard scale from A+, A, A-; B+, B, B-, down to F.

My grade would be: A

Group member's Name Amara grade would be: A
